went to Lebanon on Tuesday night and played the team at that place. Lebanon won three straight games. The Springfield team was made up as follows: Will Green, Leon Allen, Will Waters, Will Russell and Clifford Roberts. The Lebanon
team was as follows: Webber, Rabel, Johnson, Cramer and Baker. The same teams will on Friday night.

The Harmony Concert Company composed of four attractive young lady musicians gave the second of the series of entertainments for the Springfield
lecture course at the Opera House on last Saturday night.
The performance was highly pleasing to the audience. The music, both instrumental and vocal rendered by the young ladies was of a high order. The performance of Miss Kirksmith
on the violin and that of another Miss Kirksmith on the flute were especially new.

The suit for damages of L. M.
Walker against Joe T. Hurt was taken up for trial Tuesday.
Young Hurt was driving an automobile through town one day last June and caused a horse hitched to a runaway belonging to Mr. L. M. Walker, the rural mail carrier to run away. The buggy was smashed and the horse was badly injured. Mr. Walker had left the horse standing at the side of the road when the auto came around a bend and the horse took fright.
Walker is represented in the case by Messrs. John W. Lewis and T. Scott Mayes while Dr.
S. Robinson, of Campbellsville, and W. C. McChord, of this place
represent the defendant.

The grand jury has adjourned
after returning 22 indictments.

Charles Patterson. Adams who is a blacksmith claims to have received a permanent injury to his leg while shoeing a horse belonging to Simpson which was said to be a vicious animal.

Judge Patterson on the former trial gave peremptory instructions for the defendant, the case was taken to the Court of Appeals which tribunal sent it back to be tried before a jury. Judge Thurman who was engaged in the case vacated the bench and Mr. W. F. Neikirk presided in this case.

Sunday School Convention.

The Washington County Sunday School Convention met at Tenn. Ky., Nov. 7, at 10 a. m.
and was opened with devotional
exercises led by the President, Rev. R. E. C. Lawson. The following committees were appointed: Resolutions and future
work, Mr. C. B. Pope and Wm.
Cowan; Nominations, Rev.
G. W. Campbell and C. R.
Druggan. The program for the day was then taken up. Rev. R.
E. C. Lawson in the absence of Rev. G. W. Lyon, discussed,
"The true aim of Sunday school work."

Rev. J. W. Campbell, in a very able manner, discussed,
"The relation of the pastor to the Sunday school." The President made a report of the "House to House visitation, recently conducted in Springfield.
Prof. R. A. Fox led a very interesting study of the following topics: "House to house visitation," home department, cradle rolling, primary work.

The noon hour having arrived
the convention was elegantly and beautifully entertained by the good people of the community. A most excellent picnic dinner was served on the grounds.

Afternoon exercises were opened with song and prayer
conducted by Mr. C. B. Pope, after which Mr. Fox entertained told us what the Sunday School Association is, and what it is trying to accomplish in 1907.

Rev. W. B. Williams being unavoidably hindered from attending the very important subject arranged for him by
"How to awaken and maintain interest in the study," was very ably discussed by Rev.
R. L. Purdon.

Mr. B. A. Fox then very entertainingly and helpfully discussed "Teacher training."

A very creditable offering was made for the main entrance of the Association, Committee on resolutions making no report. The President thanked the people of Texas and the community for their kindness to the convention
and their excellent entertainment.

The nomination committee reported that same officers be elected for the ensuing year.
The report was adopted.

The music rendered by the singers of the village was much appreciated by the convention. At 3:30 p.m. the convention adjourned.

Notice.
The firm of Roberts & Hyatt having been dissolved it becomes necessary that all of the business of the firm be settled at once. All persons knowing themselves indebted to the firm will confer a favor by calling and settling. I will be in Springfield until December 1st and will prefer to settle these accounts before I leave. After that date all accounts will be put into the hands of an attorney for collection.

Card of Thanks
I wish to extend to the many friends my thanks for their kindness and sympathy expressed during the recent illness and death of my father, Mr. C. W.
Epperson and to assure them
that their kindness will be ever gratefully remembered.

WELL.

Advice of Noted Authority,
Also Gives a Simple Home
Prescription.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old and experienced physician, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking, in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Anyone can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity, when shown the prescription stated that they could either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

Feel Your Friends.
How shall the following be read:
If a 6 but 1 0 then
5 9 6 but 1 0 then
Then let my 9 6 be
And give 9 6 9 then?

Try this one.
Two eyes you see, two eyes you see,
I see you are the eyes of me.
Here's still another. Read this properly:

There is a lady in the land
With twenty tails on each hand.
Five and twenty no hands and feet:
This is true without doubt.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

Deliver and the Sugar Barrel.
Senator Doolittle of Iowa can tell a humorous story as well as Mark Twain, and to get the real flavor of the fun in the following one should listen to it as told by him in his dry, humorous way:

"Sugar was sugar when I was a boy. I cost from 25 to 30 cents a pound. You that time, and children were not allowed to eat quite as much of it as they do nowadays. It was a rare occasion—a sort of family event—when sugar was brought home. At such times I can well remember how the precious cake was solemnly conveyed to the big closet-stomach under the stairway, rolled inside and the door carefully looked and the key turned over to the housekeeper.

"One of the many tragedies of my boyhood occurred one fateful day when she accidentally forgot to lock that door. I sneaked into the closet to help myself to the sugar, got caught at it, and before I could get my head out of the barrel the ex-crescent barked—Judge.

"Asking the Impossible.
"I want you to write me a play," said the aspirant.

"What kind of play?"

"Oh, any kind of play that will draw."

The playwright sighed deeply.

"That's the one kind of play I've never been able to write. It's really unattainable."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mr. Desiring Honors.

"I haven't kept track of her. What is she doing now?"

"Well, for a year or two she was a story that she was a principal support. Later on she played old woman roles."

"And now?"

"Now she's billed as a stage beauty."—Houston Post.

A Geographic Error.

"There is too much water in stocks," remarked the financier.

"That," responded Colonel Stillwell gravely, "is due to your lack of foresight in not looking Wall Street down in Kentucky, where the limitation of water are more properly understood."—Washington Star.

WORKING IN A "TUBE"

Remarkable Experience in a Lock
In Compressed Air.

AT FORTY POUNDS PRESSURE

The Way It Feels When the Valve is First Opened and the Chamber Fills With the Inching Air and Fog. Why You Don't Collapse or Explode.

As the lockkeeper turns the valve, writes A. W. Bolter in Appleton's Magazine, there is a scarp rising across as if your ears were next the safety valve of a locomotive blowing steam, and as the tumbling air expands it fills the tiny chamber with fog so dense that you cannot see your hand before your eyes. Wider and wider the valve is opened, the fog becoming ever denser and the racket increasing under the air fairly drowns and your ears and eardrums and your very scalp tremble with the air that is vibrating about you. For the first time in your life you realize that you may suffer physical pain and that there is a possibility that it may kill.

No sooner is the big valve opened than you feel the pressure of the compressed air. A big wall of cotton seems thrust into each ear, and two big fingers seem to push the wads more and more firmly until each time when you swallow or blow into your mouth the sensation disappears only to begin anew. Should you purposely delay swallowing, when twenty seconds the pain becomes intense and faintly threatening, as if you were cruciating, as if a pair of halting needles were being pushed deep into your ears.

Nothing short of the faith that others successfully withstood their sensations prevents you from becoming unduly excited, for actually you are in the throes of about as disagreeable a situation as you can meet. For the eternity of half a minute the racket and fog and ear pain continue. Then the noise comes as suddenly as it began. Out of the fog comes the voice of your guide:

"Feeling all right? Ears all right? No trouble to breathe? Chamber all right? Again the valve screws and the air drowns, the top of your head and you are shaken with it and without.

Gradually, after the lapse of ten minutes, when the pressures in the heading and the lock become equalized, the din begins to slacken; then it falls more and more and fades to nothing, after which you again open the heading door and you gaze upon another length of "tube" like that you left behind.

How does it feel to be under forty pounds pressure? There is no sensation to it—none whatever—except the trouble, for in case your heart is going to give out there is no warning symptom until too late. Against every square foot of the surface of your body is a pressure of 5,760 pounds, and the only thing that prevents you from being squashed is the air in your lungs. Every square foot of pressure inside of you, yet you do not feel it.

The pressure of air without is so great that were it not for the pressure within you would be smashed flat as a lead run over by a steam roller, and the pressure within you is so great that were it not counterbalanced by the pressure from without you would explode like a dynamite cartridge.

Yet you have no means of realizing this. You breathe as usual. You breathe normally and without effort. You move about without being conscious of exertion. Only a feeling of weariness left in the ears after talking remains.

The noise of rumbling cars and creeping shovels from behind sounds natural. So does the voice of your guide. Only your own voice seems strange in your own ears—far deeper in pitch than you ever have heard it before, and far, not as if it came from your own mouth, but as if from the feet behind; also, and this strikes you queerly until you have found the cause, all sounds are chopped off short, for in this heavy atmosphere there is little echo and carrying power. Even the explosion of a dynamite cartridge makes no more noise than a shotgun fired above in daylight.

In this dense atmosphere were you to try to breathe with your lips or to blow a corner or a life you might blow your lungs out without producing a sound, for the pressure would resist any sound waves of which your lungs were capable. Owing to the excessive supply of oxygen, were you to light a match it would burn with the rapidity of tinder, amid volumes of smoke.

For the same reason an oil lamp or a lantern would burn itself out within a few minutes, emitting volumes of soot that would completely blind the

And for the same reason a light pipe or cigar will burn of itself without suction, and a single infinitesimal of smoke is all you would be able to get out of it. When you bring an empty-cooked bottle into this pressure from the outside, the pressure against the cork, unbalanced by pressure from within, would be so great that you would be unable to pull the stopper. These are a few instances of what you find when under forty pounds of pressure.

After filling a bag with silver and other valuables Provok sat down to eat and drink and relax himself at the home of Paul J. Belt, 312 Jefferson avenue, Cleveland, O. Belt returned to find the stranger at his board. The burglar blew out the lamp and hid in the darkness. Then he fired in the darkness. Then he fired in the darkness. Then he fired in the darkness.

Illustrating the strange power of the imagination, E. F. Benson, author of "Dodo," tells this incident: A doctor who knew had found it necessary to give a patient for many evenings an injection of morphine to enable him to get some sleep. After while the doctor thought it advisable to stop the morphine, and for two nights his patient was unable to sleep, owing to great pain. On the third night the doctor, being still unable to administer morphine, injected plain water instead. The man slept perfectly and awoke in the morning with what is known as a morphine mouth.

WOLVES SAVED HIS LIFE.

Rescued Keeper Attacked by Two Big Grizzly Bears.

The love of a wolf for a man saved the life of Alfred Hill, animal keeper at the Denver Zoo.

Mr. Hill had gone into the bears' den to quiet old Abe and the one other grizzly in that enclosure. Both of these giant animals have been extremely angry during the last several days, attacking the other bears without provocation.

The animal keeper was unafraid despite the ugly tempers displayed by the grizzlies and traveled them, armed with no more formidable weapon than a leather whip.

"You stand around there and get on your good behavior," Mr. Hill said to the grizzly during the last several days, but he would be a bad boy.

The grizzly didn't reply in words, but he was sure to wag his head in his

THE PENGUIN.

Comically Serious in Mating—Its Wicked Flippers.

It is probable that penguin pair for life, although nothing definite is known on the subject. When mates are chosen the process is as interesting as it is striking. As is the case with so many creatures, the males fight with each other for the females, might being right in the penguin code. The birds have regular fighting places, and one such battleground was found under an overhanging ledge. The results of lustrous encounters were present in the shape of great quantities of loose feathers surrounding the little fighting ring, which itself was clear of all debris. Although the back of a penguin is so formidable a weapon when used on thin-skinned enemies, yet their own skin and blubber are so resistant that they can inflict no injury by this means. The customary mode of fighting is really a kind of boxing, or "slapping." It might be called. The two combatants proceed to the fighting place and then wait cautiously about each other, jockeying for an opening and ready to take instant advantage of a false step or move on the part of the opponent. All, however, is solemn and decorous, consistent with the rest of the life of these strange little beings.

When it is each secure a mate, the grip on the neck or body of the opponent the real fighting begins. As nine-tenths of the work of penguins is spent on the open sea, where they pursue and capture fish, swimming with great swiftness by strokes of the flipperlike tail. It can well be imagined that the strength of their wings is very great, and when the two fighters begin to belabor each other with rapidly vibrating flipper strokes each resounding whack must make a considerable impression even on the protecting coat of blubber fat. No one has ever recorded the finish of such an encounter, but it is not probable that they result fatally. The weaker of the two must soon succumb under such severe punishment and yield the field and the fair penguin mate to his stronger rival. The strength of the wing strokes can be tested by allowing a penguin to take a few strokes on a piece of paper. The back of the hand. The third or fourth stroke will draw blood, and the soon fully satisfied as to the penguin's ability in this respect. The tough skin and the loose, rubber blubber beneath, besides breaking a fall and protecting the bird from the icy waters in which it lives, sometimes subserve another most important purpose—New York Tribune.

WOMAN AND FASHION

A Stylish Long Coat.

The long coat promises to be more in evidence this season than ever, especially for afternoon and evening wear. Here is shown a simple style that may easily be copied in any plain faced material.

OF BLACK FACED CLOTH.

The strappings of cloth may be replaced by braiding if a more elaborate effect is desired, and the ornate band at the neck is in keeping with the prevailing fashion in trimmings.

Many of the costumes of winter were fashioned by the tailors show his folds of velvet in self or contrasting colors, but chiefly matching the color of the costume. These folds are combined with the wide braid and the soutache and make for novelty. For autumn wear satin folds overtopped by various openwork designs in soutache are seen. In most cases both the satin and velvet bands will match a color in the costume.

Among the newest local ornaments are those formed of short loops of soutache braid sewed on a cashmere foundation, and rosettes and choirs of various kinds, large and small, tassels and brandenbourgs, as some of the new ornaments are termed, will be much used in costumes and separate wraps as well.

Some Small Hats.

By a careful search the small, close fitting turban as foyes can be found. The small hat always finds favor with a certain type of woman—that is, the one with classic, regular features who likes plain and rather severe things. Therefore the small hat will always be on sale—never mind what the prevailing mode.

So few women realize that the success of a hat depends on the way the hair is worn that too much can never be said to improve this point. In fact, the way the hair is worn about the face makes or mars, and many a large hat seemingly most uncomfortable to wear—almost impossible, in fact—opens its discomfort to hair not planned fittingly in place, but so loosely no support can be given to the pins.

A Great Grocer.

A little red squirrel, from an available evidence a Methodist, undertook to attend divine services, interrupted the pastor in the midst of an eloquent sermon and caused something of a commotion among the congregation at the Wayne M. E. church in Philadelphia. The squirrel entered through an open window near the pulpit and, sitting up, with its tail curved over its head, calmly surveyed its surroundings and eyed preacher and congregation as unconcernedly as though it was an everyday occurrence. The intrusion disconcerted Pastor Thompson to such an extent that he for a moment lost the thread of his sermon. After requesting one of the members to "please put that squirrel out" he resumed his discourse.

Life Saved by Letters.

The life of Constable Charles P. Stevens of San Antonio, Tex., was saved by a package of letters carried in his inner left side pocket. He had been on his way to a store on Prospect Hill to make an arrest when the person wanted disappeared. Constable Stevens drove down a road in his livery and when near a clump of bushes was fired on. A full charge of bird shot struck where he carried his letters, most of them lodged in the papers, others penetrating the flesh to some extent.
